Disaster status sought to assist county farmers

BY TRACI BONNEY

The corn may be "as high as an elephant's eye" in Oklahoma, but in Hancock County you'd do well to find a stalk as high as an adult's knee.

Local farmers have lost a lot this year — corn, hay, soybeans, wheat and oats — because of the abnormally heavy rains in the region (more than 100 inches in Hancock County since January 1, according to the latest Civil Defense report).

About 20 of those farmers from a four-county area (Hancock, Harrison, Pearl River and Stone) met Wednesday with representatives of Rep. Gene Taylor and Sen. Trent Lott, the Hancock County supervisors and state Sen. Vic Frankiewicz to discuss the problems the farmers face with most of their planting season lost to rain.

Dickie Joe Ladner of Ladner Farms, who acted as an informal spokesman for the farmers, answered questions from Taylor field staff member Chris Lagarde and Lott field representative Royce Luke, and gave them his views on the underlying problems the confront farmers.

He said the government agencies set up to regulate and assist the farming industry have been good services, but have gotten out of control in recent years.

Money targeted for disaster relief ends up going into other areas such as housing because bureaucracy prevents farmers from taking advantage of what is available, Ladner explained.

TRADE PROBLEMS

Giving a brief recap on how the problem between the federal government and U.S. farmers began, Ladner said the situation started in Jimmy Carter's administration when Carter, realizing that American agriculture is a vital part of the nation's economic health, opened up opportunities for farmers to obtain loans for land, equipment and inventory.

However, when Russia tried to invade Afghanistan, Carter cut off agricultural exports to Russia. Ladner said this frightened the United States' other trade partners, who are now trading with other countries which charge lower prices for their products.

While trade with foreign countries is rising somewhat, he continued, the farmers still must contend with 22 percent interest rates from the loans they were encouraged to take during the Carter years.

"The problem is not being corrected," Ladner stated.

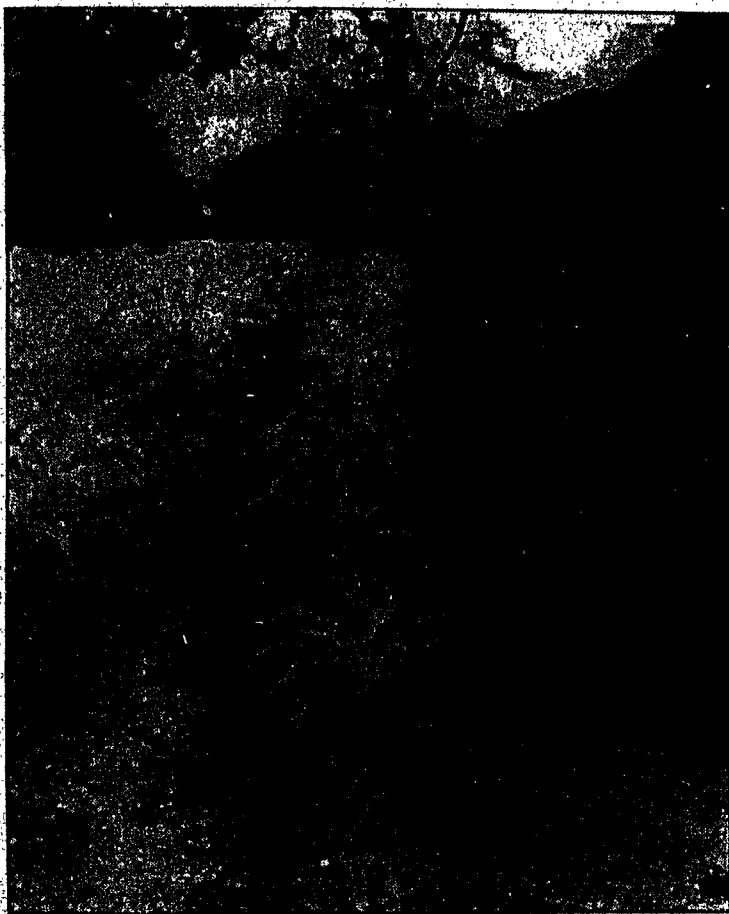

He said a little common-sense horse trading is needed to equalize the trade balance between the U.S. and other countries.

For instance, Ladner suggested that when a Japanese freighter docks in a U.S. port and unloads a boatful of cars, that freighter's manifest should

Rain damage

Hancock County crops have taken a beating from abnormal rainfalls this year. More than 100 inches of water have dropped on local corn, hay, wheat, oats and cotton in the last five months. Corn which should be at least five feet tall and producing ears is barely knee-high and bare of any ears, as shown at right. Oat and wheat stalks have been levelled by rain, hail and wind, and the few kernels produced, like those below, have ruined. (Echo staff photos by Traci Bonney)

Bay St. Louis council reduces utility rates

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Bay St. Louis city council heard something rare at its meeting Tuesday night: applause.

The ovation followed a motion, unanimously approved, to reduce city residential utility rates six percent and commercial rates 8 1/2 percent.

Mayor Edward Favre said the city is able to cut its utility rates because of new gas supply contracts which reduce the city's wholesale costs; improved efficiency through centralized purchasing which controls operating costs below the inflation rate; and controlled gas loss through restoration of deteriorated gas lines.

Starting June 1, monthly residential minimum rates for gas will be reduced from $11 to $10; for water, from $6.50 to $6; and for city sewer service, the flatrate will go from $14 to $13.

Commercial rate reductions are from $11 to $10 for gas; $12 to $10 for water; and $14 to $13 for city sewer service.

While the reduction per customer doesn't sound like much, Favre said the total reduction to the city will be approximately $100,000.

The mayor also asked for and received approval to appoint Phillip Remel as the city's tree adviser. The tree adviser, called for by the city's tree protection ordinance, will have several duties, including inspecting trees targeted for possible removal by property owners and developers, and making recommendations as to whether or not to allow the removals.

U. S. Postal Service recognizes Diamondhead as separate from Bay

Beginning June 1, the U.S. Postal Service will officially recognize the Diamondhead community as separate from Bay St. Louis, U.S. Senator Trent Lott said recently.

"We have been working with the Postal Service for months now to have Diamondhead recognized as a separate community. Under this new plan, Diamondhead residents will now be able to receive mail with a 'Diamondhead' address," Lott said.

"This is a great first step toward getting a separate zip code and a separate post office facility for the Diamondhead area."

The Postal Service has previously considered Diamondhead as a part of Bay St. Louis and Diamondhead residents had

State health department medical consultant Mary Currier reported the mixed-breed dog which severely injured seven-year-old Jason Watts on Saturday, May 11, was found negative for rabies.

The 30- to 40-pound dog, Max, attacked Watts at the home of owner Connie Tadlock of Shoreline Park while Tadlock was babysitting Watts and at least one other child, according to police reports.

Watt's mother was reported to have gone to Hattiesburg that day. The children were outside when the attack occurred.

Tadlock rushed the child to Hancock Medical Center where he received treatment for facial injuries. The child was reported to have needed stitches from his mouth to his ear.

Because of the location of the injury, reported Currier, there was the danger that if the virus was present, it could have reached the brain.

Max had not had a rabies vaccine since Nov. 1, 1989, reported Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Matt Karl.

Currier stated that although rabies is rare in Mississippi, because the dog had not had a current rabies vaccination, and because of the loca-

Student discipline questioned by county parents

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Student hearings have dominated the majority of the Hancock County School Board meetings since January.

Parents and students line the hallways of the district office waiting their turns to appear before the board.

The school district has no in-house punishment for students because of lack of funds to pay for the necessary supervision required.

The process of reprimanding a student for misconduct involves three forms, a warning, a suspension and an expulsion.

Over and over, these past months parents have expressed a common frustration with the present means of disciplinary actions exercised.

One father, who described himself as a single father of three, expressed a general feeling among the parents saying, "He thinks it's great to be suspended. There is no one at home to supervise him, since I work."

The parents often spoke of how at-home suspensions did little to impress their children. Student hearings are held in executive session.

During Tuesday's meeting, school board members listened attentively as bids for paving work to be completed on the parking lot at Gulfview Elementary School and on the bus turnaround at the high school were opened and read.

Bids from four businesses were recorded, placed under advisement and sent on for review by the appropriate department head for recommendations.

The board then went into executive session for the purpose of student hearings.

Following two hours of hearings, the board left executive session and gave approval of: —a recommendation of Cecil Powell as athletic director for

Shadow Box cast gives forceful performances

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Bay St. Louis Little Theater's production of the play "The Shadow Box," directed by Nan Ehrbright, is an outstanding achievement for a community theater company.

The performances are strong and involving, as is the character of the play itself.

"The Shadow Box" is the story of three terminally ill people and those people in their lives most immediately affected.

Throughout the play the theme of hope is interpreted and applied to those individuals involved.

The first character we meet is Joe, played by Ron Kozak of Waveland.

Joe is angry. He has not had the time to accomplish those things he wished to do with his life.

Joe is visited by his wife Maggie and their teenage son, Steve, played by Davy Perronne of Diamondhead.

Steve is confused by the strain between his parents, for he has yet to learn of the fate which awaits his father, as it awaits all.

Elaine Glover of Bay St. Louis as Maggie gives a moving performance as the wife who hides behind denial. One sympathizes with Glover's Maggie, who is confused, frightened by the reality that her world, as she knows it, is about to end.

The second central character we meet in this triangle of tragedy is Brian, Clem Acker of Diamondhead gives a smooth and even performance.

Brian is a pivotal character. He has accepted his eminent death and through that, for the first time, has found life. He expresses a joie de vivre for those most precious moments remaining, thereby expressing the message that life is but a temporary state and should be lived moment by moment to its fullest.

Brian is cared for by his lover, Mark, played by Gary Taylor of Pascagoula. Taylor's Mark is frustrated with the role of caretaker. Guilt ties him to Brian and he jealously guards him from the carefree and careless ex-wife Beverly.

Beverly, played by Sandy Higdon, pops into Brian's life for a brief visit between meaningless affairs. She is the extreme case of living for the moment.

Higdon brings us a vivacious Beverly, a Beverly who beneath all the thrill-seeking reveals the deathlike emptiness of meaning in her life.

The third corner of the triangle is revealed in the relationship of Felicity and her daughter, Agnes.

Edith Back of Bay St. Louis plays the wheelchair-bound Felicity, who strikes out unevenly at those around her. She clings to one hope, that her daughter Clare will come to see her, while her other daughter, Agnes, cares for her every need, as it appears unselfishly.

Becky Rotundo reveals Agnes' good intentions with the innocence of a well-meaning daughter. Upon her discovery that her actions have caused harm, there is heightened confusion and pain aptly displayed through motion as well as words.

There are two extreme points of intensity in "The Shadow Box." One, a heart rendering confession of fears by Maggie to Joe, and two, an explosion of emotions between Beverly and Mark.

At both times, these little theater actors were able to bring to those points a commendable believability.

The play is well cast, the chemistry is well balanced.

"The Shadow Box" is not a play for children. The language and subject matter are adult and intense.

The stage design is imaginative and actually helps to recount the three separate but related stories. Michael Wesley provides the lighting, sound and special effects.

The play is thought-provoking and tries to leave one with a feeling of sadness. Yet there are moments when the play leaves one smiling with the acknowledgement that yes, life is precious; yes, life is short; and yes, how we choose to live it now, is of the most importance.

"The Shadow Box" was written by Michael Christofer in 1977 and won both the Pulitzer Prize for Best Drama and the Tony Award for Best Play that year.

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre production of "The Shadow Box" will open tomorrow night, May 24. Performances will be repeated on May 25, 31 and June 1. For reservations call 467-2121.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Water, water, water everywhere, is an expression we are constantly hearing, especially in Hancock County. The Mobile Weather Service on Tuesday reported that city's annual rainfall at 64 inches and New Orleans at 56.77 inches.

The average for Hancock County should be somewhere in between these two figures.

Bobby Boudin, Hancock County Civil Defense director, keeps a record of rainfall, and through Wednesday, his records shows a total of 97.55 inches.

Now folks, the 97 plus inches are for less than five months.

Many are beginning to wonder as to why we are having so much rain, and I am unable to really come up with an answer.

The southeasterly winds in addition to the excessive rain have really been causing some serious flooding in several Hancock County locations.

The winds won't let the rain water out in addition to coming in the areas and covering many of the roads in the lower areas.

The county and cities' road crews are having difficulty trying to make repairs. It is not possible to grade roads covered by water, whether it is from rain or excessive tides.

Pot holes are continuing to grow, especially in areas covered by water. Patches made on some street do not even last a day.

Sections of Beach Boulevard had to be closed on Tuesday because of high tides.

Streets are cracking, grass is like wild, crawfish mounds growing in numbers, banks of rivers and streams are overflowing, potholes are popping up all over the place and until we get a week or two of sunshine, we will continue to have these and more problems.

We hear a lot about people elsewhere praying for rain, in Hancock County we could do just the opposite.

Would you believe that the Mississippi State Highway Department spent $870,000 last year on litter?

Some 77,590 man-hours were spent to clean up Mississippi's roads by the State Highway Department. These figures do not include the amount counties and cities spent on litter collection.

I am sure the cost was over $1 million. Just think of how many miles of roads could have been overlaid for that figure.

Litter is something each and every resident pays to have collected, and we all need to be more concerned about the big expense to each of us.

One way to help is simple, don't litter, please!

Saturday and Sunday, May 25 and 26 are the dates set for the annual Air Show at the Stennis International Airport.

The event is sponsored by the Experimental Aircraft Association Chapter 479 and Gulf Coast Air Race Association.

Gates open to the public at 9 a.m. throughout the day. Admission is $5 for adults and $2 for children age 6 to 12.

All types of aircraft will be on hand for viewing, including experimental airplanes and military aircraft from World War II, Korea, Vietnam and Desert Storm.

It sounds like it will be two days of fun and festivities for the entire family.

There will be aerobatic performances, parachute demos, static displays and aerial re-enactments. I hope to see you at the Air Show.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Stop bickering in Waveland; work together for progress

Dear Editor:

We have all been reading the letters in the Sea Coast Echo about Waveland, written by some who have not attended City Hall meetings. They have written about what they have heard transpired in these meetings. Opinions are what they are writing about. They are entitled to their opinions, but they should get all the facts first.

Let's set the record straight. The people who came to these meetings did not blame the mayor or the board of aldermen for the sewage, drainage or park problems. They came asking for help; when can they expect some relief, and what kind of planning is going on to take care of these problems.

I have been in business in Waveland for 39 years and in those 39 years people have been coming to City Hall looking for answers to problems. They are entitled to be heard and receive a good answer for their requests.

There has always been a shortage of money in the past. In 1969 Hurricane Camille devastated this little city, but with hard work and cooperation the past administrations have done a great job in bringing this city to where we are now. Since 1974 Waveland has witnessed the construction of Our Shopping Center, Kmart Shopping Center, Wal-Mart and many other shopping areas, plus the addition of approximately 400 apartments and a lot of new homes.

For the year 1974 Waveland received $18,386 as their share of the sales tax from the State Tax Commission. In comparison, Waveland received $699,980 in 1990 as their share of sales tax, making an addition of $681,594 for their tax share. As a result of this increase, the citizens of Waveland are expecting a lot of new services and improvements to which they are entitled.

I have enjoyed being in business in Waveland. It is a wonderful city, and the people residing in Waveland are wonderful. We all need to work together as we have in the past and stop all this bickering and continue to make Waveland a great place to live.

Yours truly,
Delmer E. Wilcox

Waveland politics: Same game with change of names

To the Editor:

In response to the letter criticizing Waveland Alderman Stan Weidman written by Mike Mayo, I find it hard to believe anyone who support Mayor Stella Frilot would criticize Stan Weidman.

I remember a very short time ago when Mrs. Frilot was an alderman in our city. She seemed to go out of her way to question everything Mayor Longo did. If this was okay with her supporters, why is it wrong for Mr. Weidman to question everything she wants to do?

I did appreciate her work as an alderman, as I appreciate Mr. Weidman's work. I believe that an alderman should make sure he or she knows all the facts before a vote on any issue. Costs and expenditures should be questioned to make sure the city is getting the most out of our tax dollars. I believe this lays a foundation for good government.

Waveland should go to city council form of government. Our present alderman form of government is no longer adequate for our growing city. Stan Weidman, the alderman who should be questioned, and the mayor should both be removed from office. Our alderman should be removed from office and replaced by a city council. Our city should not have a mayor and alderman form of government. Our city should have a city council form of government. Our city should have a city council form of government. Our city should have a city council form of government.

Governor being blamed for Delta flooding

Never, in the many years that I have been to the annual meeting of Delta Council here in Cleveland have I seen the usually genteel planters and business leaders of this region so angry.

They were mad about the flood, of course. But they seemed to be madder at Gov. Ray Mabus, who they charge with pulling the plug two years ago on several scheduled federal drainage projects in the upper Yazoo River basin.

As the influential organization met, there were about 2 million acres of Delta under water, and predictions were rife that this year's cotton, soybean and rice crops, the economic mainstay of the region, will be a disaster.

Nobody is really sure that any of the proposed Army Corps of Engineers drainage projects in the Yazoo basin would have helped much against this spring's enormous rainfall but rain-drenched Deltans aren't to be convinced otherwise.

They know that as a result of Mabus' request to the Corps of Engineers in May, 1989 to "reformulate" eight or more scheduled projects because of his environmental concerns and desire to provide more urban flood protection, all of the projects have been on hold by the Corps.

The fact that Mabus' position at the time was also supported by such groups as Ducks Unlimited and the Mississippi Wildlife Federation seems to have been lost in flood frenzy.

So Mabus has become the target of the frustration for the entire flood-ravaged people. "He's the only one in a position of leadership who has created an obstacle, and he has to shoulder the responsibility," said one area political figure.

"The majority of the people up here are interested in the environment and wetlands, but they've got to make a living and get the water off their land," said Sen. Nevin Sledge of Cleveland.

Some of Mabus' harshest critics are charging that the governor "sold out" the Delta in return for campaign contributions from well-heeled environmentalists in other parts of the country. That accusation is ludicrous, say Mabus campaign leaders. Evidently Mabus has fueled the criticism of him by the way he handled himself in appearances he made in the flood areas the past week or so, especially in Belzoni and the beleaguered town or Marks.

The story is being circulated that Mabus bounced off the plane at a stop in Belzoni, wearing a shiny new pair of black rubber boots that were obviously too large for him. Sen. Ollie Mohamed of Belzoni, who owns a general merchandise store, greeted Mabus with a grin, and asked about the brand-new boots.

"Got them at Wal-Mart for $10," said Mabus. "Do you sell boots?"

"Yes, but we don't sell junk," Mohamed replied.

At Marks, still wearing the new boots, Mabus ran into what Quitman County Supervisor Norris Faust Jr. described as "a bitter bunch of folks." Faust said the crowd didn't cotton to Mabus' "designer duds" for going to a flood.

Faust said Mabus was "posing standing on sand bags and strutting around" while his still photographer and a cameraman snapped pictures of him. "We felt as though he was just using us to make pictures for his political commercials," Faust added.

Mohamed said he, along with several other Delta lawmakers, had warned Mabus nearly three years ago, not to inject himself in the proposed Yazoo basin drainage projects, because "it was the business of the levee boards, which are constitutional boards."

"Since Mabus declined to heed that advice," Mohamed said, "politically, he is dead in the water up here." He added that while the Delta "may not be able to select a governor, we can hurt somebody bad."

Significantly, U.S. Rep. Mike Espy, who represents the Delta, reaffirmed his initial opposition to Mabus' 1989 request to the Corps of Engineers to halt the drainage projects by signing a Delta Council petition calling on the governor to rescind his position.

Meantime, the Mabus forces, maintaining that none of the

Memorial Day boating forecast: Death won't take a holiday

Memorial Day weekend is one of the most popular boating weekends of the year, and as many as 50 million Americans will take to the waterways in more than 19 million power, sail or self-propelled pleasurecraft, according to Boat Owners Association of The United States (BOAT/US), the nation's largest organization of recreational boaters. Unfortunately, as many as 46 Americans may also die in boating accidents.

Recreational boating fatalities are currently the third largest category of transportation-related deaths in the nation (behind automobiles and airplanes). During 1990, 865 Americans were killed in boating accidents. According to U.S. Coast Guard statistics, the Memorial Day weekend death toll is 77 percent higher than the average number of boating fatalities reported to the Coast Guard for non-holiday weekends in May.

"Most boating fatalities are caused by accidents which can be prevented," notes BOAT/US President Richard Schwartz. Alcohol is a factor in about 50 percent of all boating deaths, and improper operation of the boat is a factor in about one-third.

BOAT/US suggests that boaters keep in mind these simple rules when they go boating this Memorial Day weekend:

• Know before you go - get a weather forecast. The prudent mariner wouldn't go without one. While underway, observe current conditions and be aware of changing weather patterns. Conditions on the water can change quickly.

• Treat your life jacket as if your life depends on it. Four out of every five people who die in boating accidents aren't wearing their life jackets.

• Keep a sharp lookout while the boat is moving. Most accidents are collisions. Avoid close encounters with other boats or objects in the water. A number of fatal Don't overboard your boat with people or animals. Make sure that you have all Coast Guard required equipment on board.

• Alcohol and boating don't mix. Never let an intoxicated person operate a boat.

Disaster

be held up until the ship takes on a load of soybeans, corn, wheat or whatever."

WATERLOGGED CROPS
Moving from national problems back to local concerns, the farmers said it's too late to produce a good corn or cotton crop, and almost too late for soybeans. What corn was planted has not grown properly, and the cotton that has grown is waterlogged.

As for the hay, oats and wheat, the hail, rain and wind have beaten the stalks down. Local fields look as though heavy machinery used in street paving rolled over them.

The cattle and timber industries are suffering too, the farmers said. The cattle are not gaining as much weight as they should because the grass they are grazing is full of water; the timber cutters can't harvest anything until the trees dry out.

Local and national aspects of the farmers' problem were intermingled during the course of the meeting. At one point, Ladner told Luke and Lagarde, "If some of these things (federal and trade problems) are corrected for the long term, you wouldn't be dealing with these little Band-Aid situations, gentlemen."

One difficulty he cited is that faced by farmers who switch from one crop to another. He said he is switching from soybeans to cotton, but can't get any assistance until he has planted cotton for three years and thus established a base.

Frankiewicz asked if that meant farmers switching crops were in a "three-year Twilight Zone," to which Ladner replied, "We're in purgatory, man!"

DISASTER STATUS
Two things needed locally, Ladner said, are flexibility for the county agricultural committees to deal with farmers, since the committees are familiar with who in the county are legitimate farmers, and a disaster declaration so that federal assistance can be sought.

Supervisor board president Ronald Cuevas said the supervisors will pass a resolution requesting such a declaration at today's recess meeting. He said they would then telefax the resolution to the Harrison, Pearl River and Stone County supervisors so those counties could join in the request.

The resolutions will be faxed to the governor's office so that the matter can be expedited, Cuevas added. Frankiewicz said he would contact the appropriate people in the governor's office to make sure the paperwork is completed as quickly as possible.

After the meeting, Lagarde said he has been working with farmers throughout Mississippi for eight months to find out what their needs are and how best to meet them. Commenting on the meeting, which was the first such formal gathering for local farmers and government representatives, he said, "It's a shame that this rain has been the impetus to bring everyone together."

Lagarde said the farmers need a grant which they wouldn't have to repay, not a loan which they would. As Ladner and the other farmers explained earlier in the meeting, they can't get a disaster assistance loan if they can't show a cash flow, and they can't show a cash flow because they've had a disaster and haven't made a profit.

Luke said he feels sure Lott will do all he can to help the farmers. "I hope the governor's office acts promptly in getting the disaster declaration," he added.

The supervisors all concurred that the farmers need some relief from their financial difficulties and some help on the national level so that their products can be sold in a competitive market.

Cuevas said, "We certainly need to have Hancock County declared a disaster area. These men have invested a lot of time, money and energy into their farms. They need some help."

He added that fishermen, timber producers and cutters, cattlemen and the county road system also have been adversely affected by the almost-continuous rains.

Wilmer Seymour commented, "I think this (meeting) is a good beginning. If we can follow up on it, I think it can do some good."

Frankiewicz said, "I learned a lot. I knew the farmers were having problems and I certainly knew that all of this rain was hurting what was in the fields already, and was preventing them from doing any new planting."

"The new part that I learned was that the disaster declaration system, as we have it set up right now, didn't work last year and isn't going to work this year unless we follow up beyond the state level to be sure that the right money gets in the pipeline."

Lagarde, Luke, Frankiewicz and the supervisors agreed to meet with the farmers next week at Ladner Farms to update the farmers about the progress being made.

Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray American Legion Post 77 will sponsor a Memorial Day service Monday, May 27, at the Post Home on Coleman Avenue, Waveland, according to Commander Lawrence Freeman.

Guest speaker for the event will be retired Brigadier General Wallace E. Farragut. The public is invited to attend.

Bay St. Louis mailing addresses.

Lott, who had requested the change on behalf of Diamondhead residents, was informed of its approval by postal officials.

The Postal Service had told Lott in December that it would construct a postal facility for the Diamondhead community in 1993. The scheduled construction is contingent on funding being available in 1993, postal officials have said.

A formal request for designating a separate zip code for the Diamondhead community will be submitted to the Postal Service, Lott said. A previous request was rejected because postal officials considered only the number of addresses in the community and not on the geographical and community identity aspects.

The postal service has agreed to review the request and take new factors into consideration, Lott said. Meanwhile, Diamondhead will share the 39520 zip code with Bay St. Louis.

SHOPPING UP A STORM

By Katy
McGuire Caire

Meat budgets get a break at our area supermarkets these days, with extra-specials on center cut chuck roasts, as well as boneless chuck roasts and steaks.

Round bone-in beef shoulder steaks are also a special buy, and a little higher up on the price list are top sirloin boneless steaks, and, for that special dinner, T-bone steaks.

Here's a good way to make that boneless sirloin steak go further towards satisfying your appetite for steak, making use of another good buy, broccoli. It's:

BEEF-AND-BROCCOLI STIR-FRY

1 lb. fresh broccoli
1 lb. boneless sirloin steak
3 Tbsp. oil, divided
2 Tbsp. soy sauce
2 Tbsp. cornstarch
2/3 cup chicken broth
2 Tbsp. sherry (optional)
1/2 tsp. sugar
Hot cooked rice
Trim off large leaves of broccoli, and remove tough ends of lower stalks. Wash thoroughly, cut into florets and set aside. Slice the steak diagonally across the grain into 1/4-inch strips. Pour a tablespoon of the oil (vegetable or olive) around the top of your preheated wok or skillet (or use cooking spray) coating the sides. Add the steak strips, and stir-fry for 2 minutes, then remove from pan. Pour the remaining 2 tablespoons of oil around the top of the pan, add the broccoli and stir-fry for 2 or 3 minutes, then remove. Combine soy sauce and cornstarch, add the chicken broth, sherry and sugar; add to the pan, and cook over medium heat until thickened and bubbly.

Finally, add the steak strips and broccoli to the pan, and stir-fry for 2 minutes. Serve over rice. (4 servings)

Speaking of broccoli, as well as other fresh vegetables, I like to spark them with a zesty citrus-accented topping at times. So, making use of the fresh crop of oranges just now, here's:

ORANGE SAUCE FOR BROCCOLI

1 Tbsp. margarine
1 Tbsp. all-purpose flour
1 Tbsp. grated orange rind
3/4 cup fresh orange juice
Strips of orange peel
(While the cooked broccoli is kept warm, make the sauce). Melt the margarine in a heavy saucepan over low heat; add the flour, stirring until smooth. Cook for just a minute, stirring constantly. Gradually add the orange rind and juice, and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and bubbly.

Pour the sauce over the broccoli, and garnish with strip of orange rind. (6 servings)

If you buy one of the boneless chuck roasts, you might wish to cook it this way:

CHUCK ROAST IN ZESTY SAUCE

1 (3 to 4 lb.) boneless chuck roast

1 (8 oz.) can tomato sauce
1/2 cup beef broth
1 medium onion, chopped
2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1/4 cup catsup
2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. prepared mustard
1 tsp. paprika
1/8 tsp. garlic powder

Combine tomato sauce, beef broth and onions in a shallow dish; add roast, cover and marinate in the refrigerator for 8 hours. Then, remove roast from marinade, reserving marinade.

Combine marinade with the remaining ingredients, and pour over roast. Cover and bake at 350 degrees for 2 1/2 hours or until tender. Skim fat from sauce, and serve with roast. (6 servings)—from "Southern Living" magazine files.

Whole smoked pork picnics are a good buy this week, as are pork spare ribs, Cornish hens, along with chicken thighs, drumsticks and wings.

Bell (green) peppers, green onions and Vidalia onions are good values, as well as fresh yellow corn, home grown potatoes, yellow squash and potatoes.

Council Continued from Page 1A

The city council voted to put back into service three surplus Ford LTD police cars that would have sold for only about $600 each. The cars will be used by certain city personnel, including the building inspector, during their work hours. Favre said this will eliminate the need to reimburse those employees for mileage.

Concerning the purchase of a dump truck, the council voted to rescind acceptance of a bid from Charlie Henderson Ford and accept instead the bid from Fowler Buick GMC in Jackson.

Purchasing agent Gordon Boh explained that the council originally accepted the Charlie Henderson bid even though it was not the lowest because the dealership is a local store, even since the truck offered by Charlie Henderson Ford did not meet a minimum bid of $14,380.00. The low bid of $14,380.00 was from Fowler Buick GMC.

In another bid matter, the council took under advisement a recommendation from Police Officer Boh to purchase a new uniform for city employees.

Jackson Uniform holds the current contract with the city.

During the public forum, Allyson Keller opened her remarks with a paraphrase of the song "I've Been Workin' on the Railroad": "I'm concerned about the railroad."

As the laughter that greeted her words died, Keller explained that Amtrak is considering reestablishing its Mobile-to-New Orleans route that ran during the World's Fair. The company is requiring that each of the three routes involved pay up a bond of about $166,000 against losses.

Keller said Alabama and Louisiana have put up their hands, but Mississippi has made no move to do so. She asked that the council write a letter to the governor and contact their legislators to boot Amtrak out of the state and away from the Gulf Coast.

It could be very important to the city of Bay St. Louis and the surrounding community, she said.

One was that financial feasibility was given a high priority in the request for proposals, while no mention was made of feasibility from a neighborhood impact standpoint.

The second was a sentence in the proposal requesting that the studies of the three phases would run concurrently. Ethridge said the underfoot that the studies were to be done step by step.

The same for the second Ethridge concerned in the order they were given. About the neighborhood feasibility, he said that the studies were to be done step by step.

Conceding that the study would be a long one, he said that the study would be a long one, he said that the study would be a long one, he said that the study would be a long one.

Still Hunters present want list to DWFP

Ransom Jones of Pascagoula, president of the Mississippi Still Hunters' Association, announced that over the next year the MSA will ask the Mississippi Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks for the following:

—to increase the antler size on legal bucks to four points;

—to reduce bag limits on management areas where hunting pressure is heavy; and —to adopt a tagging system for whitetail deer and wild turkey in Mississippi.

In addition, the MSA will request the legislature to abolish the use of dogs for hunting whitetail deer;

—to pass legislation concerning trespassing dogs on private and leased property;

—to allocate an equal number of days for still hunters;

—to establish legal hunting hours during which dogs can be used; and —to transfer season-setting authority from the legislature to the Department of Wildlife, Fisheries and Parks.

Their combined total of 162 points placed them in third place behind St. Petersburg High School and the Naval Academy Prep School. St. Petersburg repeated for the fourth straight year as winners of the Mallory trophy, topping Marion, Massachusetts' Tabor Academy's early 1980's record of three wins.

NAPS of Newport, R.I. was second, SSC Rock-A-Chows finished third, St. George's of Newport, R.I. fourth, and University of San Diego High School was fifth.

SSC's sailing team will remain virtually intact next year, losing only senior Manning Montagnet, who will participate in intercollegiate sailing for the U.S. Naval Academy. SSC look forward to an active '91-'92 sailing year with returning team members Kevin Northrop, Owen Peneguy, Gilly Chamberlain, Eugene Schmitt, Charlie Merrigan and Wayne Murphy.

SSC students interested in any aspect of the sailing team are encouraged to contact Rafferty at the school, 467-9057.

Cazier, Niolet named Byrd Scholars

Eighty-five Mississippi high school seniors have been awarded Robert C. Byrd Honors Scholarships in the fifth year of this national program named for the long time legislator from West Virginia.

The scholarships, of $1,500 each for one year, were awarded based solely upon past academic success. Financial need of the applicants was not a factor. All winners will be required to show proof that they are attending college.

The scholarships were disbursed equally statewide, with 17 being awarded in each Congressional District. The students' home address was the determining factor as to which Congressional District he/she was placed in for the judging.

Applications for the scholarships were judged based upon ACT/SAT scores, grade point averages, extracurricular participation, honors and awards, and a one-page essay entitled, "Why I Intend To Go To College."

The Byrd Scholars were selected by a six-member committee of parents, teachers and administrators. The program was open to all high school seniors in both public and private schools in the state.

They include Joseph Scott

Niolet, St. Stanislaus High School, and Clay Cazier, Coast Episcopal High School.

Homrig, Cazier named CES STAR student, teacher

Coast Episcopal High School has announced the selection of Jeffrey Gerald Homrig as STAR Student for 1990-91. He, in turn, has chosen Mrs. Sandra Marble Cazier as STAR Teacher.

The Student-Teacher Achievement Recognition (STAR) program, sponsored by the Mississippi Economic Council, encourages and promotes academic excellence among Mississippi's high school seniors and involves more than 300 schools statewide.

STAR students are selected on the basis of academic excellence, American College Test scores and scholastic averages.

Homrig, a senior at CEHS, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Homrig of Biloxi. He is a National Merit Finalist and was a Japan-U.S. Scholar this past summer.

He is a member of the National Honor Society, Mu Alpha Theta, and vice-president of the German Club. He is sports editor for the yearbook and a member of the Quiz Bowl team. He lettered in football.

As a junior, Homrig received the Sewanee Book of Excellence

Award and was a Youth Science Exchange Ambassador to the USSR.

STAR Teacher Sandra Marble Cazier has taught English, creative writing and biology at CEHS for seven years. She is a graduate of Millsaps College and has done graduate work at USM, William Carey and the University of the Philippines.

STAR students and teachers were recognized by the Mississippi Economic Council at a luncheon in Jackson in early April.

Tasselin to be honored at Duke ceremony

Cedric Tasselin, a student at Pass Christian Middle School, will be honored for his academic achievement at a grand recognition ceremony June 2 at the Duke University Chapel in Durham, N.C.

Some 1,161 students from 16 states qualified for this honor. The grand recognition ceremony is sponsored by the Duke University Talent Identification Program (TIP) to salute the highest scoring seventh-graders in TIP's 11th annual Talent Search.

All students invited have earned scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT) or the American College Testing Assessment (ACT) higher than 50 percent of college-bound high school seniors. The students will receive book awards at the ceremony and the highest scorers will also receive summer program scholarships.

TIP serves 16 states in the Southeast, Midwest and Southwest. Over 75,000 mathematically and verbally able seventh graders were identified by the program this year. TIP is a non-profit educational organization established in 1980 with a five-year grant from The Duke Endowment. The program receives continuing support from student fees, individuals, corporations and foundations.

Tasselin is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Tasselin of Diamondhead.

DECA marketing team takes second

Students from Bay High's Distributive Education Clubs of America competed at the State DECA Career Development Conference in Jackson recently.

Winning second place in creative marketing were Terri White, Amy Bourgeois and Mona Stanfield.

As their project, they developed a comprehensive marketing plan for Jerome's Department Store in Bay St. Louis, submitting a written report of their proposal; and presented their findings to three judges in competition.

Joe Cuevas was elected to the office of DECA District IV (South Mississippi) vice president.

Wendy Lamb, advisor, will accompany the four students to Denver, Colo. for the national competition.

Lamb reported that "without the generous support of the school administration and the community, the students would not have been able to participate in the conference."

Teens sharpen leadership skills

Bay St. Louis area students in grades 7-12 had an opportunity to develop their leadership skills during a statewide competition held at the University of Southern Mississippi.

The USM Center for Gifted Studies conducted the annual leadership competition, which allowed students to compete for awards in four events—plans for leadership, essays, speeches and arts.

Leanne Bennett, 15, daughter of Lee and Diane Bennett of Diamondhead, tied for first place in the area of essays (designated topic) for grades 10-12, and placed second in the prepared speeches category in her grade division.

Garya Latino, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Latino Jr. of Diamondhead, tied for first in the area of essays (designated topic) for grades 10-12.

Other students from Bay St. Louis who participated in the April competition were Vicky Lamb, 16, daughter of Mary and Larry Lamb; Wayne Oertling, 17, son of Jim Oertling and Merryl Oertling; and Cedric Tasselin, 13, son of Fabienne and Patrick Tasselin.
